

Purpose

To reveal the interests, roles, and efforts that stakeholders already have in integrating behavioral health. This worksheet is to be completed by key stakeholders who have a grasp of the agencies, organizations, programs, and payers addressing integrated behavioral health in their state, including but not limited to: health care systems, health centers, state agencies, technical assistance providers, philanthropic organizations, professional organizations, residency programs, payers, and policy makers.

How to use this tool

Identify relevant organizations and potential partners in your state, region or community. Complete additional cells to best define their role in integrated behavioral health. Avoid using acronyms and provide enough specificity so the information captured in this tool can be utilized by stakeholders who may be less familiar with various efforts to integrate behavioral health.

- The partner’s role or “job” in advancing integrated behavioral health
- Their particular influence or leverage in the large picture of integrated behavioral health —what they are in a good practical position to influence; what kinds of things that partner is good at doing (and perhaps in contrast, what they are not particularly well positioned to do)
- Their current focus of effort on integrated behavioral health, e.g., projects or plans—what they are doing (or plan to do), with whom
- Their contact information including their name, title, email address, and website. Include multiple points of contact as needed
